Response to AG
First Set of Data Requests to CUB
CUB witness Thomas

AG 1.10 In Mr. Thomas' opinion, are the costs associated with AMI unlikely to be justified without the imposition of some form of dynamic pricing for residential customers? Please explain the response and provide all supporting workpapers.

RESPONSE:

Mr. Thomas has not reached a position on this issue. However, Mr. Thomas would note that do-no-harm rate designs like Peak Time Rebates are dynamic in nature and could provide additional value to customers. Peak Time Rebates are not possible without some form of interval metering.
