

CLEAN ENERGY. DELIVERED.

ROCK ISLAND CLEAN LINE

The United States has some of the best renewable resources in the world. However, we do not have adequate transmission infrastructure to transport the energy generated from these resources to communities that need the power.

Clean Line Energy is working to address this challenge.

The Rock Island Clean Line is a 500-mile overhead, direct current transmission line that will transport clean energy from northwest Iowa to Illinois and other states to the east. The Rock Island Clean Line will deliver 3,500 megawatts of clean power, create thousands of jobs, support low-cost power, and result in cleaner air and water.

CLEAN LINE ENERGY WOULD LIKE YOUR INPUT ON ALTERNATIVE ROUTE CORRIDORS

These open houses will provide information about the Rock Island Clean Line to residents and landowners—including you—within and nearby the alternative route corridors and will give everyone an opportunity to provide feedback.

A route corridor is an approximately half-mile-wide area being considered for the Rock Island Clean Line. These corridors will be used to determine a specific route for the transmission line.

These December open houses are a follow-up to the open houses held in June to review 3-mile-wide to 10-mile-wide study corridors.

Alternative Route Corridors in Illinois

More detailed information on the alternative route corridors, including maps, will be available at the open houses and online at www.rockislandcleanline.com.

You are invited to an open house meeting because property in which you have an interest lies within or near one of the alternative route corridors currently under consideration and may be affected by the location or construction of the Rock Island Clean Line, a 500-mile electric transmission line project. Please join us to learn more about the Rock Island Clean Line.
