

Attachment A: Managerial and Technical Requirements

Jim Troublefield joined AmGas, Inc. in September 1987. AmGas, a privately held company, was engaged in the marketing and management of natural gas requirements of commercial and Industrial class customers in Illinois. Responsibilities included in-depth tariff analysis, creation of detailed costs analysis of delivery options, customer acquisition, designing marketing materials, contract negotiation, problem resolution and the monitoring of daily consumption and deliveries.

In January 1991 Jim became a Regional Director at AmGas, Inc. New duties included the hiring, training and management of a six person in-house sales team. The in-house sales team achieved record sales for AmGas while maintaining the lowest overhead of all AmGas sales teams.

In 1994 AmGas was purchased by a large Midwestern Utility Company. Jim's duties included the integration of two sales teams with different cultures, while increasing market share, setting growth goals, tracking progress and migrating into new markets. Jim was also a member of the Executive Board at AmGas overseeing the overall growth and direction of the company. Jim oversaw the coordination of activities of forty-five sales people and two managers, meeting company objectives for growth and profitability.

In 1996, Jim, along with 2 co-workers started Energy Related Services Corporation, providing energy consulting, procurement, and data management services to national corporations. Today, ERS services a wide variety of commercial and industrial accounts throughout the United States. In April 2012, Destination Energy, LLC was created. Destination Energy currently services customers in Texas. Customer demand has DE is now looking to expand its services to additional markets.
