Cost Savers, Inc. (CSI) is an independent consulting company that provides utility bill auditing services, both natural gas and electric for commercial and industrial customers. CSI's primary goal is saving clients' money on their utility bills with energy companies that have the best ratings from the better business bureau with proven track record for customer service beyond the energy savings in a deregulated market.

Cost Savers, Inc. is a privately held Corporation with an office in Crystal Lake, Illinois. It is a family owned business and we outsource our website maintenance while the accounting and legal services are in house. We have developed Illinois partnerships in energy that offer the best personalized service to assure complete satisfaction with our customers.

Cost Savers, Inc. is led by its president, Laurence Kozlicki. During the past 5 years, Mr. Kozlicki has provided outstanding customer service for clients that operate commercial and industrial companies. Mr. Kozlicki has over 30 years of experience in owning and operating several companies. He has proven track record of delivering superior customer service in every business he has owned to date. His success and business ethics record are apparent through public recognition. Mr. Kozlicki has been inducted into the prestigious Chicago Area Entrepreneur Hall of Fame and was awarded the Blue Chip Enterprise Award, which is co-sponsored by Mass Mutual, Business Week Magazine, and the Chamber of Commerce.

Once licensed, CSI looks forward to expanding its expertise of customer savings and service in the Chicagoland market to help ensure that our clients are informed with the best savings and service with local Chicago providers. We source all eligible and qualified suppliers to bid on our customer's business.

Shown below is a biography of Mr. Kozlicki, a biography of Marty Smith III-Vice President of Customer Care Department, and Cost Savers, Inc. Organizational Chart.

Laurence C. Kozlicki, Secretary & President, Costs Savers, Inc.

Biography: Laurence C. Kozlicki

Laurence was born and raised in the Chicago, IL area, graduated from Northwestern University in 1966 with a B.S. degree in Journalism and obtained a Juris Doctor Law degree from IIT/Chicago Kent College of Law in 1969. He was a partner and practiced law with a medium size firm for several years until he left to start his own niche law practice in 1976. Starting a law practice is not unlike starting a business, with the biggest difference being the product is yourself. He grew the business to 10 attorneys and about 20 employees over a 12-year span with his practice, specializing in corporate and finance law, including representing a large number of Chicagoland banking institutions. Many of his clients looked to him for more than legal advice as they sought his input on major decisions regarding acquisitions, business strategies and management.

After practicing business law in Chicago for almost 20 years and accomplishing most of his goals, Laurence moved into a second career. He left a successful law practice and began acquiring companies and/or seeking situations from which he could start and build various businesses. He seemed to be able to see "opportunities" where others thought a business had stagnated, or where someone had a concept but was unable to make a business out of it or when a business needed someone to take it to the next plateau. The result has been either the acquisition or founding of 10 different businesses of various kinds over the past twenty years.

In the beginning of each of these businesses' lives, Laurence devoted almost all of his attention to building the organizations, creating operating systems, developing their growth strategies, and ingraining his principles of leadership & good ethics. This allowed him to continue developing new businesses without being tied to daily operations after the first several years. Laurence's acquisitions and start-ups cover such diverse businesses as a Women's Professional Basketball Team that won the world championship in 1981 a toy manufacturing company that invented the pogo stick, several equipment leasing companies, the oldest potato chip company in Chicago a steel castings company that was founded in 1858 that had offices in 23 countries, a new technology company that utilized global positioning satellites to provide digital mapping and inspection services to gas and electric utility companies and a manufacturer of hurricane, storm and security shutters. Currently, he still has interests in two of these companies, including the equipment rental company that he operates and which celebrated its 40th anniversary in the fall of 2012. Laurence has owned it for 26 years as it was the 2nd company he acquired to own and operate.

Laurence has been inducted into the prestigious Chicago Area Entrepreneur Hall of Fame, sponsored by some of the major universities, law and accounting firms in Chicago. In addition, one of his current companies, Time Savers, Inc. was awarded the Blue Chip Enterprise Award, which is co-sponsored by Mass Mutual, Business Week Magazine and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. He also serves on the Dean's Advisory Council for UIC's Entrepreneurial Studies program and runs a separate company that provides free advisory services to new entrepreneurs who are starting businesses.

His experience in energy goes beyond independent consulting that provides utility bill auditing services, both in natural gas and electric for commercial and industrial customers. He is responsible for the development of a new technology company that utilized global positioning satellites to provide digital mapping and inspection services to gas and electric utility companies. As president of Cost Savers, Inc. Laurence has successfully formed "Channel Partner" relationships with Santanna Energy, Ambit Energy, and other reputable "best in service" providers in the local Chicago and suburbs market.

Marty Smith III, Vice President, Customer Care-Energy Department

Biography: Marty Smith III

1973-Present:

As a United State Marine Corps Disabled Veteran, in 1973 Marty started Universal Outdoor, Inc., a billboard advertisement company. Through the application of strategic vision, market positioning, and long-term growth planning, Marty realized great growth and success in this business for 17 years. Also, his success with the company came by providing personalized service to his clients and learning what their needs were and how to meet those needs. His skill in client services gained business through word of mouth and referrals.

Along with building the billboard advertisement company, Marty helped with the inception of another new company, Universal Outdoor, Inc. He assisted in building and managing the "Out of Home Media" into the largest independent company the Midwest area within this sector. In 1990, he sold his interest. In 1997, the company was sold again and it is known today as Clear Channel. This doesn't happen without strong leadership, vision, and best in service to clients.

Marty has bought and sold several other companies including Derse Outdoor in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. He brings his strategic vision, market positioning, and customer service experience to Cost Savers, Inc. as the Vice President of Customer Care in the Energy Department. Marty has worked closely with the President, Laurence Kozlicki to leverage the company's service capabilities by forming "Channel Partner" relationships with energy service providers that value service to our customers beyond providing utility bill auditing services.
