Customer agrees and understands, by the FLEXO printing, that all aspects of artwork design, layout and color will need a minor adjustment to fit template and print production accordingly. All artwork production will be 80%-85% close to original artwork. Most importantly flexo printer does not print any color (CMYK) that is under 3%. In other words, any gradations and colors blending through other colors, which fall between 0% and 3%, Migz Graphics reserved the rights to either add on 3% of CMYK colors or to delete to 0%. Customer acknowledges the final product will be created based on the artwork confirmation information.

Local Access Numbers

Local Access numbers are dialled when you are located in that city. For example: if you were in Tamworth (NSW) you would dial the Tamworth access number not the Sydney number. By dialling the correct local access number a local call cost will apply to the landline phone you are calling from (I.E home phone) if dialling from a pay phone 50 cents will be required to make the call.

1300 National Access Number

The 1300 National Access Number can be used from anywhere in Australia. You would use this number if the city you are in does not have a local access number listed. An additional charge of 5 cents per minute will be deducted from your calling card.

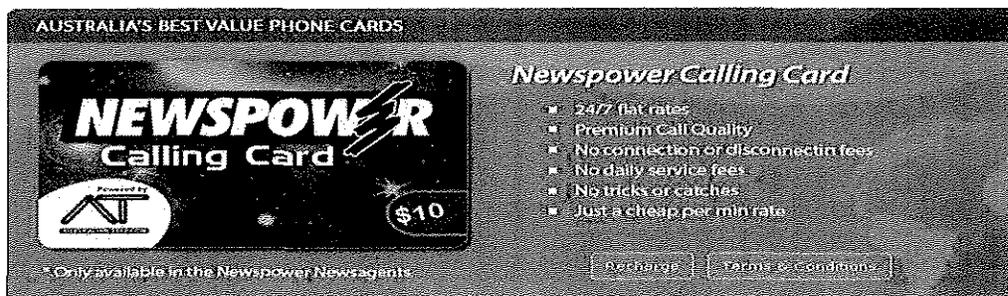

1800 Convenience Number

The 1800 convenience number is designed to be used from any payphone in Australia without the need for coins to call the access number. When using the 1800 access number an additional surcharge of 10 cents per minute is deducted from your calling card instead. It can also be used from home phones where the users doesn't want to have any local calls charged added to their home phone account (the 1800 access number cannot be accessed from mobile phones)

Using your Mobile

You can call our local and 1300 access numbers from your mobile phone, but your mobile carrier will charge you for the full duration of the call. We suggest you confirm the cost of this before using your mobile with our calling cards to avoid excessive bills. If possible use your card from a fixed phone line to get the best value from our service.

For full details on this card please click on the link: <http://www.austel.net>

Local Access Numbers

Local Access numbers are dialled when you are located in that city. For example: if you were in Tamworth (NSW) you would dial the Tamworth access number not the Sydney number. By dialling the correct local access number a local call cost will apply to the landline phone you are calling from (I.E home phone) if dialling from a pay phone 50 cents will be required to make the call.

1300 National Access Number

The 1300 National Access Number can be used from anywhere in Australia. You would use this number if the city you are in does not have a local access number listed. An additional charge of 5 cents per minute will be deducted from your calling card.

1800 Convenience Number

The 1800 convenience number is designed to be used from any payphone in Australia without the need for coins to call the access number. When using the 1800 access number an additional surcharge of 10 cents per minute is deducted from your calling card instead. It can also be used from home phones where the users doesn't want to have any local calls charged added to their home phone account (the 1800 access number cannot be accessed from mobile phones)

Using your Mobile

You can call our local and 1300 access numbers from your mobile phone, but your mobile carrier will charge you for the full duration of the call. We suggest you confirm the cost of this before using your mobile with our calling cards to avoid excessive bills. If possible use your card from a fixed phone line to get the best value from our service.
